The Louisville Herald carries an index on its first page that is very helpful to the busy reader.

DEAR reader, remember that in Turkey & Co's voting contest for the ugliest man, your editor is a candidate.

HENDRICK says he does not want an office if he has to steal it from a Republican. What could Beckham say?

If men were as anxious to attain goodness as they are to achieve greatness, their very goodness would make them great.

The historian of five hundred years hence, will refer to the murders and lynchings of the 20th century as the work of semi-savages.

The greatest wealth that man can lose is courage. This once lost he follows the line of least resistance, which leads to the almshouse.

A SOUTH CAROLINIAN shot at a preacher in the pulpit and the preacher returned the fire. That preacher had the courage to reprove sin in all its forms.

THERE were 250 murders in South Carolina last year. A character of civilization to be expected in a State that sends Ben Tillman to the United States Senate.

ALL the world is a court and every man is on trial. Against the few false witness is borne and they are punished unjustly, but the many get their just deserts.

In the Big Chiefs of the Republican party in Kentucky will conclude an armistice until after the election and turn their guns on the common enemy, the next Governor of Kentucky will be a Republican.

The contest, which closes tomorrow for the Republican nominations for Representative and Circuit Court Clerk, has been conducted in a manner which does credit to each of the contestants and insures the unanimous support of the party at the November election, for the nominees.

A YOUNG New Yorker who had dissipated $20,000 in two years, went hence by the landrum route. He left a note saying: "People are foolish to work and struggle when death can be purchased so easily and brought about so painlessly." The young gentleman is doubtless having a warm time, now.

THE Hartford Herald's insinuating question of "What does the City Council do with the $2,000 a year salary tax?" may lead its readers who do not know the members of that body, to believe they are plundering the city treasury, but it fools nobody here. Our town trustees are gentlemen of unquestioned integrity, however lacking they may be in spirit of public enterprise.

THAT $100,000 appropriated to buy perjured testimony to hang Taylor and damn the Republican party, is about exhausted, and nobody has yet been hung. Not daring to make another appropriation, the Beckham gang has turned to the economical expedient of offering freedom to life convicts to furnish the desired testimony, and Yontsey will go on the stand next week.

ANOTHER judicial farce in Judge Cantrell's court is billed for Frankfort next Tuesday, when Jim Howard's third trial, on a charge of murdering Senator Goebel, will begin. The infamous Tom Campbell will conduct the prosecution and Henry Yontsey, who is, perhaps, the real murderer of Goebel, will be brought out of the penitentiary, under promise of freedom, to swear away the lives of Jim Howard and Caleb Powers.

HERE is a motion to organize a Farmers' Institute in Ohio county. Every other class of men hold meetings at stated intervals for an interchange of ideas about their business, and why not the farmers of Ohio county? Many other counties have perfected organizations of this character with great profit to themselves and why not ours? If a half dozen progressive farmers will authorize in person, by letter or telephone, the editor of this paper to sign their names to a call for a farmers' convention, we will publish it without charge and a meeting can be held yet before the crop season advances very far.

Through the influence of Hon. D. H. Smith, we have received an invitation to be present at the celebration of the One Hundredth Anniversary of the acquisition of the Louisiana Territory.—Hartford Herald.

We regret that the managers of the St. Louis World's Fair had such a grave attitude toward the Herald that it required the influence of Congressman Smith to get it's editor an invitation to be present at the dedicatory services at St. Louis, April 30 and May 1 and 2, 1903. The editor of THE REPUBLICAN received an invitation without the intervention of the special influence of a Congressman, as doubtless did all other newspapers of the country, with the exception of the Herald.

The Republicans of the Sixth Judicial District should, at once, set about the selection of an able, wise and conservative lawyer for the office of Circuit Judge. The nomination by the Democrats of Mr. Birkhead, a gentleman pleasant enough as such, but wholly wanting in legal ability to discharge the duties of the high office of Circuit Judge, into whose hands the security of the lives and property of the citizens of the district must be entrusted, presents a problem too serious to be passed over lightly. Unless we misjudge the patriotism and good judgment of the Democrats of the district, a large number of them are willing to recognize the dangerous mistake their party has made in nominating Mr. Birkhead and from patriotic motives, will support any capable man the Republicans may nominate. The only hope for the election of a Circuit Judge, fitted for the position, depends now upon the action of the Republicans, and their course must be guided by an unselfish regard for the people of the district.

In the solemn hush of night when old mother earth was wrapped in peaceful slumbers and all nature seemed at rest, the angel of death spread its wings over the home of Mrs. Amanda Perk and awaited only the moment when his sword should fall. Two o'clock! the chiming had played the hour when, in the garb of gentle sleep, death came and claimed the soul of Mr. Wm. Perk. He was a member of the Methodist church, was a devoted christian and a kind husband and father.

No Race Suicide.

Here is a case that may relieve the President of any fears of race suicide: Mr. L. Betar, of No. 40 Orchard street, has raised sixteen children, eight boys and eight girls, the youngest of which is five years old and the oldest twenty-four, of whom only one has died, and the remainder are now in good health and most of them self-supporting. Mr. Betar's wife is forty-six years old, and a well preserved, motherly woman, well-fitted for the raising of such a large family. Both Mr. Betar and his wife are Germans and came to Owensboro from Tell City a few years ago. Since coming here they have kept their children in school as long as they were of school age and they taught each of the boys a trade. Mr. Betar is a gardener and a hard working one at that, and is now making plans to buy a home.—Inquirer.

FORT NIAGARA, N. Y.

Unlike our friend in Colorado, I see stars differently up here. Now the North Star (Polaris) is some five degrees higher than a sober man in Kentucky will see it.

Down in Manila Bay, Paloris stands fifteen degrees above the horizon, while the Great Bear goes out of sight once in every twenty-four hours.

Then, too, the Southern Cross stands tiptoe on the horizon, slightly out of drawing, but looking softly towards the North Star as in hopes of a union of the North and South. Again, at San Juan Hill, when that spent Mauser bullet hit my funny bone, I saw a new constellation, but I did not get the name.

Spring is here and our base ballists are out in force trying through toil to reach the stars.

The beautiful ice bridge at Niagara Falls has floated away, but still the river is full of ice from Lake Erie.

The ice jewels have dropped from the trees on Prospect Point, and they stand moist and dripping from the mists of the Falls. J. C.

He is survived by his wife and many relatives. The funeral took place at the Yellow Creek Baptist church at 11 o'clock Tuesday.—Inquirer.

Reached an Agreement.

Louisville, March 31.—The agreement of the miners and operators,

FRUITLESS SEARCH

For Ben Rogers, the Negro Murderer, in Rander Mines Given Up.

A report gained currency at Rander on Wednesday of last week that Ben Rogers, who murdered Al Chinn, the engineer for the coal company at that place ten days before, had been seen biding in a worked out room in the mine and a searching party was at once organized.

A strong guard was at once placed at the shaft and from ten to twenty armed men kept up the search for Rogers until Sunday morning when they despaired of finding him, and it was then decided to flood the mine with smoke to drive him from his hiding place. Twenty-four hours notice of the smoking process had been posted about the mine for the protection of the innocent, and Sunday morning the shafts were capped and volumes of sulphur and cayenne pepper fumes were fanned through the mine for four hours after which no life could exist in the mine until the poisonous fumes were driven out and replaced with pure air.

In the meantime, however, a clew to Rogers' escape was developed that strongly discredits the theory of his being in hiding in the mine. Sunday morning after the killing on Saturday night a farmer living near Cromwell went to his barn to feed his stock and found Rogers in his hay loft. The farmer knew Rogers very well, the negro having been raised in that community, and asked him why he had slept in the barn. Rogers told the farmer a story of coming out to make a trade with a white man, and arriving there late and no negroes living in the community he had decided to sleep in the barn. The farmer had not heard of the killing and accepted the negro's story without further inquiry. Later in the day, Sunday, another farmer, living near Green river, saw at a distance some one half a down river packet and go on board and he now believes it was Rogers.

The latter incidents did not come to light until a few days ago, but if followed up would, no doubt, result in the capture of the fugitive.

Fire at Livermore.

A fire at Livermore Tuesday afternoon destroyed two houses and seriously damaged another one. A two-story tenement house belonging to J. R. Moseley was totally destroyed and two families, occupying the house, lost all their household goods. An unoccupied store house, owned by Mrs. Overhouse, was burned to the ground, and Mrs. Overhouse's residence, which stood near the business house, was scorched and badly damaged.

Separation a Mensa et Thoro.

A Virginian husband has devised a novel way of settling a matrimonial infelicity. His relations with the partner whom he took for better or for worse reached that acute stage where husband and wife can no longer live under the same roof. When he married her he believed he loved her, and no doubt she felt like manner toward him. She may feel so, indeed, quite as possible for a scolding wife to love a husband as it is for a drunken husband to love his wife.

The Virginian's wife had a habit of assailing him bitterly every time he entered the house. It seemed, indeed, as if all her spare time were given to thinking out charges to hurl at her husband's head. She buried them vigorously and continuously every day till exhaustion found relief in sleep. Some men might have put up with the daily or nightly fusillade.

Others might have called on the courts for relief, others again used the horsewhip on the nagging wife, while not a few would have gone away from the scene of disagreement without telling where they purposed going. This gallant Virginian did none of these things. He erected a tent in the front yard, and moving into it the furnishings required, dwells there in peace, undisturbed by the verbal assaults of his pugnacious partner. His chivalric Virginia blood forbade him to quit. He could not be a deserter. He just changed quarters, stepping out to serve as a sort of sentinel at the approaches to the house, wherein he failed to find happiness. Equipped with everything needed, his tent is a pleasant and delightful habitation. He is in a position, besides, to command his wife's submission. If she comes to the tent, it must be on terms agreeable to him. If he goes back to the house, it must be after she has pledged herself to keep the peace. The neighboring women are enjoying their sister's dilemma. She has a husband, and yet is husbandless. To reacquire him, she must unconditionally surrender that dear wife privilege of giving him a piece of her mind. That Virginia philosopher. His example may well be followed by other husbands with nagging wives. Tents in the front yard may become fashionable in many places.—Ex.

Mr. Eddie Davison died of consumption Wednesday at the residence of his father, Mr. Ed Davison, near Shreve, and was buried in the Reach burying ground yesterday, Rev. Robert Oldham conducted the funeral services. Mr. Davison was thirty-one years old and unmarried.

Mr. Dee Taul, Magan, happened to a serious accident last Saturday, in which he had an ankle broken in two places and was otherwise painfully injured. Mr. Taul was driving a double team and when near Mr. John Miller's farm his horses became frightened at a dog and ran away with the result noted above.

Friday afternoon Cleve Her, a young groceryman here, was taken suddenly ill with some trouble of the abdomen. He was operated on Saturday afternoon and is getting along fairly well. The reappearance of the effects of poison oak with which he was affected three years ago retards his improvement. Miss Fanny Trunell, a trained nurse, of Owensboro, is nursing him. The local lodge of Maccabees, of which young Her is a member, brought the nurse here to wait on him.

SHOOTING SCAPE.

Levi Allen Resists Arrest and is Mortally Wounded by Town Marshal Alford.

Levi Allen was shot and, perhaps, mortally wounded by Town Marshal Andrew Alford at Horse Branch late Saturday afternoon.

Allen had been drinking heavily all day Saturday and about four o'clock in the afternoon he approached Police Judge W. S. Cole and insisted, in a boasting way, that he was drunk and that the Police Judge should have him arrested. Shortly afterward Marshal Alford approached Allen, who was standing on the depot platform, and taking hold of his right arm, started with him to the lockup.

When Allen proceeded only a few steps when Allen slashed the Marshal across the breast with a knife, which he held in his left hand, inflicting an ugly flesh wound about three inches long just over his heart. Marshal Alford stepped back and fired three shots in quick succession at Allen.

The first shot passed through his hat, the second passed through the fleshy part of his neck and the third, and, perhaps, fatal shot, pierced his abdomen. Allen sank to the ground but his friends soon carried him to his home near by, where he now lies at the point of death.

Allen has been known as a drinking character for the past twenty years, and has been engaged in many fights. When sober, however, he was a hard-working, peaceable citizen.

The Marshal's wound is not thought to be of a serious nature and he is at his post of duty again.

An Enjoyable Affair. The most highly enjoyed event of the season was the phantom party given by the young ladies of Hartford to the young men of the town at the beautiful home of Miss Ellie Lee Renter Wednesday evening. At 9:30 the guests unannounced and were led to the dining room by Mrs. E. D. Walker, sister of the hostess. A sumptuous feast had been prepared and after eating to their heart's content, the guests were led back to the parlor, where they were highly entertained with games. Among those present were: Misses Renter, Warner, Glens, Maddox, Fair, Cox, Wornner, Miller, Marks, Nail, Westerfield, Thomas and Miller, and Messrs. Turns, Cox, Cooper, Riley, Sanderson, Stevens, Miller, Bean, Taylor, Patin, Renter, Wedding and Woodward, and Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Walker, accompanied by their sons, Masters Berry Dudley and Robert Sidney.

In Noah Webster's latter days his exchequer, never flush, was depleted, and he conducted a book store in Pittsfield, Mass. It was in this store that Mrs. Wedding's grandfather, Noah Townsend, bought the book from its author in 1834.

LOVIE AND SELLIE

Are Happy as June Bugs in Their Old Home at Columbia, Missouri.

We have received a copy of the Columbia (Mo.) Herald, a newspaper published at the home of Sellie Douglas, who came here two weeks ago to reclaim his wife whom he accused J. W. King of kidnapping. After reproducing THE REPUBLICAN's report of the case the Columbia Herald says:

Douglas and his wife are happily domiciled in their home on Woodward Avenue, and that when approached there by a reporter told him substantially the same story of her experience with King that she had told the officers in Kentucky, and concluded by saying she was as happy as a schoolgirl to get back to her home and family again.

The name of Lovie B. Moore, by which she was known here, was her maiden name, and both she and Douglas were raised at Fulton, Mo.

Brown-Plummer Wedding.

Mr. Lee Brown and Miss Mamie Plummer were married Wednesday at the residence of the bride, four miles South of Beaver Dam. Rev. Cookley officiated. These are very popular young people and THE REPUBLICAN wishes for them a long and happy life.

Tichenor's store, and Miss Duncan is the pretty daughter of Mr. Dan M. Duncan. THE REPUBLICAN sends messages of greeting and good will to the happy couple.

Two on Col. Hayes.

Col. N. B. Hayes, of Bell county, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General, arrived in Hartford Monday afternoon and stopped at the Commercial Hotel. On the same train with the Colonel came the Louisville Evening Post, with an account of Col. Hayes' mailing out over the State his campaign literature short of postage, which the recipient has to make good before he can take it from the postoffice.

A guest at the hotel, who was reading the Post, remarked to Col. Hayes: "Here is a dispatch touching your candidacy." The Bell county Colonel arose with great dignity and smilingly approached the guest to see the dispatch concerning his candidacy. The guest in question, who is noted for his courage to call a spade a spade, quipped, as he handed the paper to Hayes: "Why don't you pay your own postage?"

The Bell county candidate retired to his corner and spent some time with the evening paper.

The Bell county gentleman finally moved over to a table to write a letter to some of the big party bosses and in an effort to acquire more in proportion to his dignity, was pushing stray bits of obstruction out of his way, when his hand came in contact with a small mounted alligator, in which he had long been extinct, when he overturned his chair in an effort to escape the little scurrier, and uttered a scream akin to that of a wild Coonach, which threw the occupants of the lobby into a state of terror.

After quiet was restored the Colonel from Bell county was shown up to his room, from which he emerged the next morning with quiet nerves and hid himself away to other scenes of adventure.

GEORGE REDDISH.

Of Rosine, Will Spend His Summer Vacation here at the Hotel a la Black.

Mr. George Reddish, a citizen of Rosine, who has developed an unusual fondness for a place on the dock, either civil or criminal, of the Ohio Circuit Court, was arrested Tuesday morning by Deputy Sheriff R. L. Boyd, and brought to Hartford where he was lodged in jail.

About three years ago, acting upon Grover Cleveland's dictum, that the appetite of a citizen is not a proper subject for legislation, Mr. Reddish decided to supply the appetite of his countrymen for strong drink, regardless of the laws of Kentucky, which, unhappily for him, had not legislated along the lines laid down by Mr. Cleveland, and as a result of which Mr. Reddish was fined $200 in the Ohio Circuit Court.

Mr. Reddish was given ample time in which to satisfy the Commonwealth with the cold coin of the realm, but failing to do so, was finally lodged in jail.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.
